Four Hancock County Couples Receive Formal Invitations To Inaugural Ball

Formal invitations have been received by fifteen couples in the State of Mississippi to attend the Inauguration, Inaugural Ball and all inauguration festivities for President Eisenhower and Vice-President Nixon in Washington, D. C. on January 21. Of the fifteen couples in the state, four are residents of Bay St. Louis, Miss. Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Seal, Mr. and Mrs. Dan M. Russell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gregory, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Weber are the couples invited, and all of whom have accepted and plan to attend, except Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gregory.

The entire state group plan to leave for Washington on the 17 of this month, to arrive there on the 18, when the festivities will begin. Mr. E. O. Spencer of Jackson, Miss., chairman of the "Citizens for Eisenhower in Miss.," is making arrangements for a couple of pullman coaches for the Mississippi group. Headquarters for the Mississippi group will be at the Blackstone Hotel, where reservations have already been made.

There will be a number of pre-inaugural activities beginning on the 18, and daily thereafter until the 21 when the inauguration will be staged during the day, and the Inaugural Ball the evening of the 21, which will terminate the program.

SINGIN' SIMS...

Former Bay St Louis Man Hits Top With Blues Disk

Dempsey Sims, a 24-year-old former Bay St. Louis resident who now lives in Brookville, Indiana, has just received the greatest news of his life—his country songs "Blue Eyed Baby" and "Blues Tomorrow" have been recorded on the Esquire label of Hamilton, Ohio.

At an early age in life he purchased his first guitar by selling garden seeds. On his first musical instrument he soon learned to pick out a few tunes. Later he traded the guitar for a bicycle in which he rode for miles to a cotton field to earn enough money so he might advance his adventure into the musical world. By studying instruction books and pointers from friends he soon arose in popularity in his home town of Evergreen, Ala. The late Hank Williams, who grew up near Evergreen, gave a spark of admiration and ambition to young Sims.

After enlisting in the Army he was sent to Camp Atterbury, Indiana. As busy as a soldier often finds himself, Sims still found time for his guitar and the musical world. While stationed at Camp Atterbury he bought another guitar and with an army pal as a teacher he advanced his knowledge. While stationed in Indiana he met and married Miss Sherry Harris, nee Campbell, nee Sims, and they now live in Brookville. Sims now has his own six-piece country band in which he plays in southern Indiana and south western Ohio for parties and other events.

HANCOCK SHY IN $235 RED CROSS RELIEF DRIVE

A $25 donation to the Hancock County American Red Cross Hungarian Relief drive by Junior Red Cross members hiked the contributions to $126, over a $100 shy of the quota.

The local chapter has set a goal of $235 as a part of the nation's $5,000,000 drive. "The tragic suffering of the people of Hungary has caused every American to want to send help," Rolan E. Harriman, national president, said. Donors may mail or take their contributions directly to the Red Cross Office, Court House, Bay St. Louis.

WAVELAND MANDATES NEARBY

William T. Turner, vice-president of the Southern Railway System at New Orleans, was pronounced dead last Saturday morning after being stricken while he and his wife watched a large grass fire south Waveland.

Funeral services were held Saturday evening at 5 o'clock at Fahey Funeral Home and burial was slated for Monday morning at Springfield Cemetery in Arlington, Va.

A native of Richmond, Va., Turner was a vice-president of the Southern Railway at New Orleans from 1939 until 1953, when he retired. He held various positions on the railroad previously in New York and Norfolk, Va., Birmingham, and Washington, where he served as freight traffic manager before transferring to New Orleans.

Turner is survived by his widow, the former Clara Adams, a daughter, Miss Lucy Turner of Waveland, and two brothers, Robert K. Turner of Richmond, and Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner who investigated the incident.

12 Men On Fire Fighting Duty 24 Hours

Twelve men, aided by two radios and three truck-mounted water pumps, are on duty 24 hours a day for the protection of Hancock County timberland, Marion Parker, area forester, announced.

"The Mississippi Forestry Commission hired these men for a period of five months each month—beginning in November and they include Alcide Nease, Sylvester Nease, Norvell Nease, Wilton Ladner, Wilfred Westbrock, Leroy Lee, Arthur Marson, Harvey Nease, Clarence Hodge, Arthur Lee and Chanley Smith," Parker said.

Parker said the Commission operates three truck and tractor units, three look-out towers with three member crew, and also said that each unit and tower has two-way radios which help speed information.

Parker listed the following telephone numbers for reporting forest fires: Rocky Hill Fire Tower, Bay St. Louis 2800; Westside Fire Tower, Logtown 2338 and named his Bay St. Louis telephone numbers of 511-J and 125.

Bishop Proposes Catholic Church Ordain Laymen

SUGGESTION MADE DURING VISIT AT AUGUSTINE'S

His Excellency William Van Bakkum, S.V.D., representative of the National Liturgical Conference, who is Vicar General of Runteng, Indonesia, recently paid a visit to St. Augustine's Divine Word Seminar a banquet in his honor, His Excellency, who is Vicar General of Runteng, Indonesia, outlined in careful detail the feelings of the bishops of all countries were represented at the conference. Bishop van Bakkum mentioned that the desires of the liturgists of every country are the same and activated by the same motives. The most common wish of the liturgists is that the faithful be enabled to make a more active celebration in the ecclesiastical service.

Prompted by the motive, the liturgists were urged to make the following proposals—the use of the vernacular in at least the eucharistic parts of the mass, the use of minor orders in the liturgy. His Excellency himself proposed that the church once again have lay men ordained to the orders so that they may perform some ser-

Two Men Hurt In Smashup

Two Clermont Harbor men were seriously injured early New Year's morning when their car failed to make a sharp curve on the Waveland Road.

John C. Klien, 25, was released from Kings Daughters Hospital Wednesday afternoon while Harvey Ming, 25, was still listed on the critical list late Wednesday at Gulfport's Memorial hospital.

Klien was reportedly caught in the wreckage and suffered lacerations over the eye and arms.

Klien, listed as driver of the 1956 Ford, was immediately rushed to a Gulfport hospital. The car, which met the smashup on the same curve that claimed one of Hancock County's six traffic fatalities of 1956, was completely demolished.

The accident, which occurred at 3:40 a. m. Tuesday, was investigated by deputy sheriff Gerald Favre.

Jan. 15 Final Day For ASC 1956 Report

"Jan. 15 is the final date for reporting Agricultural Conservation Program practices completed under the 1956 program," stated Fitzhugh Lee, chairman of the Hancock County ASC committee.

"As of this date performance has not been reported by 15 farms having approvals totaling $1,500. Unless these practices are reported by the prescribed closing date, these cost-share funds will be lost to the farmers of our country," Lee said.

The chairman pointed out that it is the responsibility of the farmers participating in the program to file performance reports for completed practices. "Practice performance reports should be completed and signed in accordance with instructions furnished when the practice approval was obtained.

Two Arrested

Federal agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit of Gulfport raided a whiskey still located a mile north of Delatale in Harrison county Tuesday afternoon.

According to G. E. Langton, federal agent who assisted in the raid, Asa Joseph Garriga and James Barnes were arrested.

Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner and deputies operating in two units Saturday night raided two north Hancock County liquor establishments that reopened after being hit by the National Guard nine days earlier.

Elk Alsbrook, operator of the County-Line club, also known as Whispering Pines and located about two-thirds of a mile inside the Hancock Pearl River county line, was charged in violation of Mississippi's prohibition law and was released at 11 p. m. Saturday night after posting $750 bond.

Richard Kennedy and Rena Kennedy, listed as operators of Kennedy's Place, also known as the Half-Way Club and located 20 yards south of the County-Line Club, were charged and released on $500 and $50 bond, respectively.

All three are scheduled for a hearing Jan. 12 before Beat Around 8:30 P. M. Saturday Sheriff Ladner and deputies James Nease, and Raoul Telhard raided the County-Line Club while simultaneously deputies Lathan Garriga, Gerald Favre and Carl Garcia hit Kennedy's Place.

Dec. 20 National Guardsmen hit the two clubs and also the You-All Club, a drive-in about 150 yards from the county line, and arrested four operators. All four were released under $500 bond each with trial set for 10 a. m. Jan. 12.

Sheriff Ladner said the County-Line Club and Kennedy's Place reopened following the National Guard raids, while the You-All Club stayed closed.

The Sheriff said all the Clubs have injunctions against them and their beer and wine licenses were revoked by the State Tax Commission in 1954.

Sheriff Ladner said his department had conducted an unsuccessful raid of the Kennedy and Alsbrook places last June 8 following complaints, but had recovered no liquor in the possession of the club operators. "Any of these businesses having any complaints against them will be raided," the sheriff stated.

Seized at the County-Line Club Saturday were 77 bottles of wine, 63 bottles of whiskey, 11 bottles of gin, 12 bottles of vodka, while at Kennedy's Place 25 bottles of wine, 15 bottles of whiskey and two bottles of gin were taken.

Sheriff Ladner said 788 cans of beer were confiscated at the County-Line Club and Alsbrook was charged with selling beer without a state permit and county license, and having intoxicating whiskey in possession.

At Kennedy's Place 527 cans of beer were confiscated and charges were made, Ladner said. The beer cans have been stored at the county jail and other liquors destroyed at the club sites, except the necessary exhibits kept for evidence, Ladner said.

Korean Cites Bay St. Louis For Beauty

HANCOCK COUNTY FOREST AND WATER AREA BEAUTIFUL

Bay St. Louis and Hancock County were cited as one of the most beautiful areas in the world by a Korean student of Conservation University, Washington, D. C.

Tong-jin Park, president of the Foreign Service school at Georgetown made the comment while on a New Year's holiday here.

Park and a group of his friends came to the area from New Orleans, where he was spending the Christmas holidays.

The boy, who is 19, said he was very impressed with the beauty of the area and the people of Hancock County.

LIGHTING CONTEST WINNERS HONORED

Presentation of awards were scheduled to be made Thursday night by the Bay-Waveland Garden club to the winners of the Christmas Lighting contest held last week.

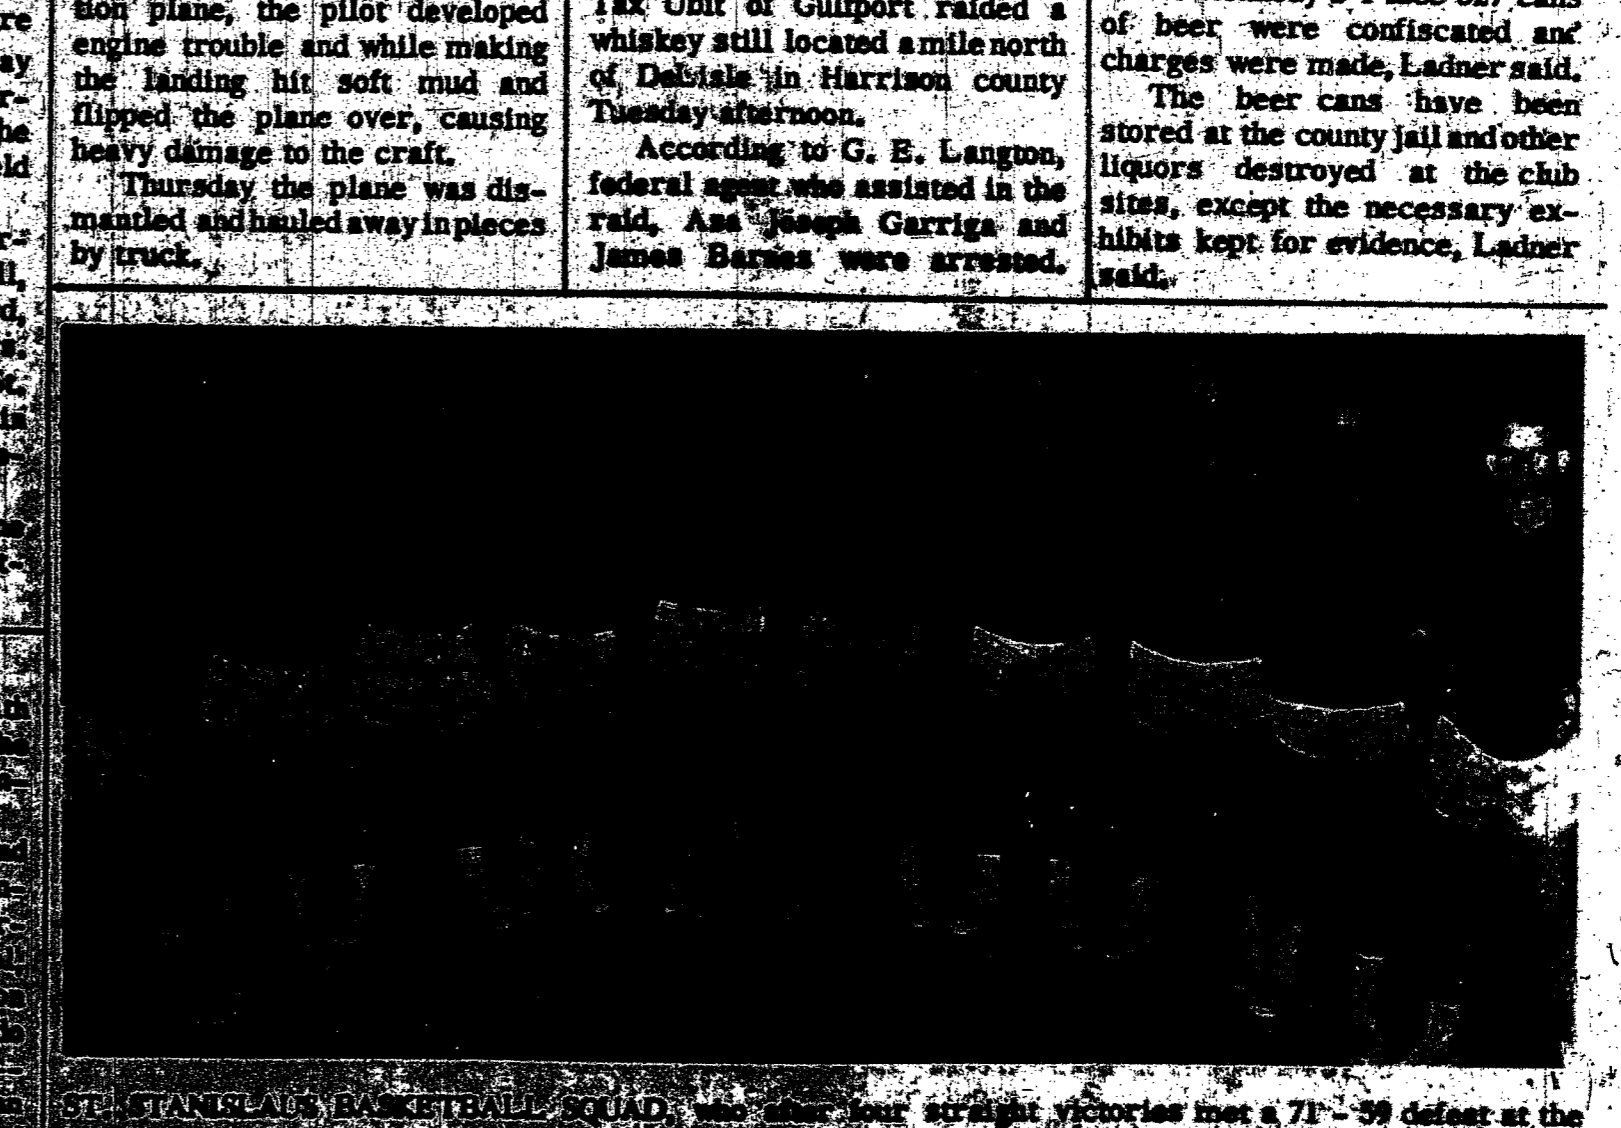

Winners included Mrs. Charles Gottschalk, Mrs. Dan Russell, Mrs. Leroy Luke, Mrs. C. Ward, Mrs. Frank Keiffer, and Mrs. Joseph Favre. 610 Hancock St. was inadvertently omitted in last week's Sea Coast Echo listing.

Mrs. Favre was awarded the honor of the most attractive and best lit home.

The most beautiful girl in the contest was Miss Mary Ann Park, who was also awarded the honor of the most attractive and best lit home.

Others making the presentation were Mrs. W. W. Weber, Mrs. A. H. Gregory, Mrs. Dan M. Russell, Jr., Mrs. Leo W. Seal, Mrs. W. W. Weber, Mrs. A. H. Gregory, Mrs. Dan M. Russell, Jr., Mrs. Leo W. Seal.

The contest was held to raise funds for the Bay-Waveland Garden club and to promote the beauty of the area.

A Busy 1956 Points Toward Big Developments in 1957

In Business

Records Fall; Boom Continues

By WALTER BEEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—"Soft spots" popped up in the economy in 1956 but total business activity smashed all prior records. All signs indicated it would thrust still higher in 1957.

There were two main forces behind the boom. One was the record rate of spending by business firms on new factories, new machines and new equipment. The other was the record rate of spending by Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Consumer on necessities and luxuries of many kinds.

Wage boosts and record employment powered the consumer spending spurge.

Consumers' buying habits in 1956 took a new twist, however, and it was this changed pattern that accounted in part for "soft spots" here and there. People spent less on automobiles, television sets, home appliances and bought fewer homes; but they spent more on food, clothes, gasoline, entertainment, medical services, education and travel.

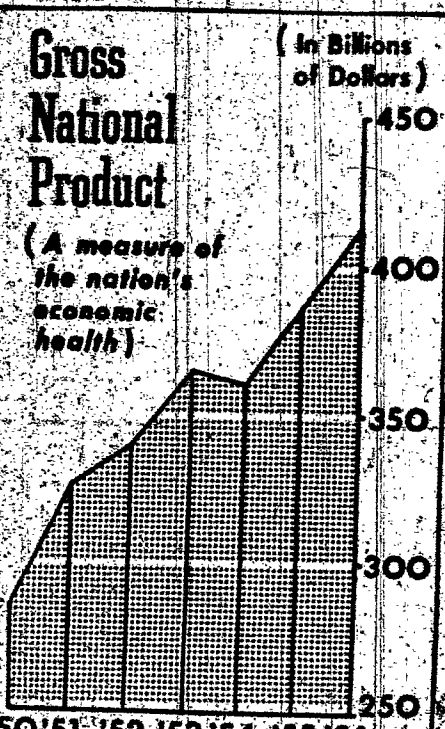

The result was more over-all spending, but less in some fields.

Housing Slowdown

"Tight credit" was blamed by some economists for slowing down the housing boom. It will unquestionably influence business trends in the year ahead. Bankers and industrialists were pretty well agreed that the pinch on credit would probably get worse before it got better.

The tight credit policy of the Federal Reserve Board was described by banking experts as unpleasant but effective medicine for the economy's inflationary ills. Its most vividly apparent outward sign was the rise in interest rates.

Another big "if" in 1956 was the tangled foreign situation. War jitters in the Middle East and the blocking of the Suez Canal posed difficult problems for many businessmen. "Tight" money and a potentially explosive international situation had a resounding impact on Wall Street. Stock prices eased back from previous peaks. Traders wondered if the great postwar bull market had finally run its course, or was getting set for another long rise.

The auto industry was plagued in most of 1956 by a surplus of new cars and a lack of eager buyers. This situation reversed itself in late fall when the sleek, new low-slung 1957 models came out. Sales perked up immediately; for the first time in months, dealers had more customers than cars. Looking ahead, Detroit predicted jubilantly that 1957 would be a banner year with Americans buying 6,750,000 new cars against the past year's total of less than six million.

Record Employment

Employment reached new highs in 1956 with some 63 million Americans holding jobs. Settlement of a month-long steel strike triggered a new round of wage increases. Pay of industrial workers set records. Consumer prices also touched new highs.

Here are some other figures in the 1956 business box score:

Gross national product (total dollar volume of goods and services produced)—estimated at 412 billion dollars, up 3 per cent from '55. Forecast for '57: about 418 to 420 billions.

Retail trade—193½ billions, up 4 per cent.

Steel production (hobbled by a five-week strike in July)—115½ million tons, down 1½ per cent.

Housing—1,100,000 new homes started, down 15 per cent.

Total new construction spending—44½ billion dollars, up 3 per cent.

BIG SPLASH BY SMALL FISH. 1956 was the year of the small nation, as Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser—shown above amid wild adulation after nationalizing the Suez Canal—Gomulka of Poland and Tito of Yugoslavia engineered coups which did more to alter the power stalemate between the United States and Russia than anything since the end of World War II.

Benson Attacks Farm Surplus

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO (AP)—Ezra Taft Benson versus the dragon, a "melodrammer" in unmeted stage, played for 12 months on the agriculture stage during 1956. It will continue throughout 1957.

Benson is the secretary of agriculture. The dragon is the fantastic hoard of foodstuffs the department has accumulated in its price support operations.

Benson attacked the dragon with a vigorous export program, a new farm act and approximately 50 million words. And at the end of the year it wasn't easy to tell who was ahead.

Progress Expected

In 1957, however, Benson expects to make some progress. He hopes to clip a little bit off the dragon's size because, he says, it is these huge surplus stocks which hold down farm prices.

Chief weapon which Benson will employ is the soil bank program. That came out of the congressional hassle over farm legislation last spring. Benson had the weapon in 1956 but got it after most crops were planted, blunting its effectiveness.

The soil bank takes land out of production. Such non-producing land is referred to by septs as "Benson's Acres," but if enough farm land is subdivided in this fashion a reduction will be made in the two largest government surpluses—wheat and cotton.

About 40 to 45 million acres may be removed from production in 1957. That's against 355 to 360 million acres planted in recent years.

Another Benson weapon, and one which proved quite useful in 1956, is a stepped-up export program. Exports rose 17 per cent over 1955, increasing for all major commodities except cotton. Many of these exports are at least partly financed by government aid.

More than 70 per cent of the wheat, corn, cotton, butter and cheese exported, and more than half the rice, barley, oats, sorghums, edible oil and milk, had the export path smoothed by one government program or another.

These programs ranged from outright gifts through charitable organizations, which received wide publicity, to payments for goods in foreign currencies, which didn't receive much publicity but became an effective means of disposal for surplus commodities. The latter program is expected to be expanded in 1957.

Americans continued to eat high off the hog. Domestic demand for farm products is linked with economic conditions, which most people found lush in 1956. The rate of business activity will determine domestic consumption in 1957.

Production of farm products in 1956 probably topped the 1955 record, although all the figures aren't in yet. Crop output was about the same as in 1955, while production of livestock was slightly higher. Both will be down in 1957.

Yearend Advance

Net farm income in the first nine months of 1956 was up 4 per cent from 1955, the first advance since 1951. An increase in marketing volume more than offset a small decline in average prices. Payments under the soil bank added about 300 million dollars to farmers' income. The Agriculture Department expects a further climb in net farm income in 1957.

Farm real estate values increased. Farm debts also went up, partly because of purchases of farms or additional land. Both probably will move higher in 1957.

Benson is expected to ask Congress for some minor farm program changes in 1957 but no glorified battle such as tied up the world's great legislative body for several months in 1956 is contemplated. It won't be an election year.

Small Nations Change World Power Balance

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The year 1956 is going into history as the year of the small nations.

Surging tides of defiance from subordinate or satellite states battered and twisted the patterns of great power conflict which have locked the world in two armed camps for a decade.

Moscow and Washington, the atomic titans, have struggled mainly to ride the floods of nationalism and freedom which boiled up in Warsaw, Budapest or Cairo. Each great power capital could try to profit from a world in turmoil but neither as the year ended could decisively control the turbulence.

Adjustment Required

It remains for 1957 to show how profoundly the upheavals of 1956 have shaken the foundations of the Atlantic alliance and the Soviet empire. At the outset of the new year it seems certain that the first task of each of the great powers is to reshape its policies to deal with the new realities of the international scene.

Far-reaching adjustments are necessary in the Soviet system if Moscow is not to turn back to the total tyranny of Stalin's time. On the Western side, the Atlantic alliance—split as never before by the British-French attack on Egypt—probably will have to be given some new reasons for existence and shored up with fresh understandings if it is to survive as an effective barrier to Soviet power.

The forces that shook the world in 1956 were neither new nor unexpected. It was the violence with which they struck which stunned leaders on both sides of the Iron Curtain and threatened to reshape the course of history by greatly strengthening the third force camp of neutralism.

West Gains

On balance the United States and other powers which have opposed Soviet tyranny and underwritten the cause of political freedom wherever possible during the Cold War seemed likely to be the big winners from 1956 upheavals. But this was by no means a certainty for Western weakness and division had opened the way for Soviet penetration on an unparalleled scale in the strategic Middle East.

Should Russia ever succeed in taking over the oil rich lands of that restless region it would have the power to strangle the industry and transport of Western Europe to death.

Yet the Soviet Union was itself faced with a different set of problems, born of its relations with its satellites which at the least impose severe limits on its freedom of operation and may in the long run help to wreck the 40-year-old Kremlin when he was ticked.

dream of world conquest. For the peaceful effort in Poland and the violent explosion in Hungary against Moscow's imperialism has done more than any single event had ever done before to destroy the Soviet dream that workers and peasants inevitably find a happy way of life in the Communist system.

The Soviet response to the uprising in Hungary also constituted a devastating blow to Russia's prestige. The Western powers were quick to denounce the Soviet use of force but they lost much of their moral position and their propaganda advantage when Britain and France used force against Egypt in an evident effort to smash the power of President Nasser and restore international control of the Suez Canal.

Parallel Courses

The coincidence of the two explosions, one in the Middle East and the other in Hungary, was typical of a parallel course of development which had gone on in both areas throughout the year.

One of the curious by-products of the period of upheaval was that the United Nations and particularly the small countries of the United Nations suddenly achieved a new power and prominence. The United States sought to work through the United Nations, both to support the freedom movement in Hungary and to get the British and French out of Egypt. In the case of Egypt, Canada took the lead in getting a U.N. police force formed and only small nations contributed troops to this unprecedented body.

Some officials thought this first use of such a U.N. force to police the peace in Egypt might in the long run prove to be one of the year's great accomplishments.

If so, the role of the small power would be in line with one of the year's notable characteristics—that the men suddenly thrown into the spotlight of history by the most decisive events of the period were men from the small countries—Tito as a symbol of defiance of Moscow, Gomulka as an architect of greater freedom in Poland, Nasser as a determined leader of the Arabs and perhaps a dangerous one for the free world and, above all, the common man of Hungary who did not know when he was ticked.

Eyes on the Future

By DOUG CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The politicians are shifting their skirmishing and scuffling now from the national arena to the halls of Congress.

This is the traditional aftermath of a presidential election—an election that produced strangely paradoxical victories which kept President Eisenhower in the White House and Democrats in control of Congress.

Probably the most impressive political event of 1956 was the way Eisenhower won a second term with a massive margin of nine million votes. But from the standpoint of future impact, an equally important development may well be the way people split their tickets and refused to give the President a Republican Congress with which to work.

As a result Republicans and Democrats will be struggling to hang their own party labels on major legislation—trying to stake out claims to items to which they can point with pride in the 1958 and 1960 elections.

The 1957 political maneuvering is bound to catch up individuals in a spectacular fashion as issues for key figures on Capitol Hill, the build-up will be starting for the 1960 presidential election.

Vice President Nixon, obviously a possibility for top spot on the GOP ticket next time, appears likely to be assigned an increasingly broader role.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who ran against Nixon, can be expected to try to remain in the public eye, too. Investigations of one kind or another have kept him there before and may again.

Kefauver has the stamp of destiny upon him, though, and may be unable to establish himself as a real contender for 1960 in Republican territory.

Spiritual Awakening Evident

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Churches are moving back to the forefront of American community life. The resurgence became clearly evident during 1956, and it was a trend that seemed destined to gain further momentum.

With residential centers of cities shifting to the suburbs, the church and synagogue emerged more and more as centers both of social life and worship. Bigger proportions of the people were becoming members.

Strong movements also developed, both within the church and in residential neighborhoods, to get some kind of religious instruction appended to the public schools.

As outer vigor gained, the churches grappled with an inner problem. Denomination after denomination eyed its own conduct regarding racial equality, and found it wanting.

They issued manifestos declaring their institutional determination to fight discrimination and segregation, but the set face of reality lingered on in the pews and programs. A few pastors cried out protests, and congregations got rid of them.

An embattled Roman Catholic archbishop in New Orleans found his own flock rising against his edict for desegregation of parochial schools. So, action was delayed. But there were some changes, some reforms. It was part of a national upheaval, and the churches were in it, and it would go on.

Despite these struggles, religious vitality stayed at an apparent peak, with membership passing the 100-million mark for the first time. Donations reached an all-time high of more than 1½ billion dollars. An unprecedented church building boom surged ahead, bidding to continue through 1957.

Protestantism still worked to consolidate its divided ranks, at least in matters of mutual concern through such bodies as the World and National Councils of Churches. Some U. S. denominations moved toward mergers—two northern Presbyterian bodies, a half dozen Lutheran branches, and two traditionally different groups—the Evangelical and Reformed and the Congregational Christian churches.

The latter unprecedented-type Protestant merger is set for consummation next June in Cleveland. Another major gathering next year will be in Minneapolis in August, when delegates representing 50 million Lutherans in 29 countries gather for an assembly of the Lutheran World Federation.

Another spectacular religious venture on the 1957 agenda is Evangelist Billy Graham's assault on the giant of them all—New York City. That comes next May, and lasts eight weeks.

U.S. Begins the Conquest of Space

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

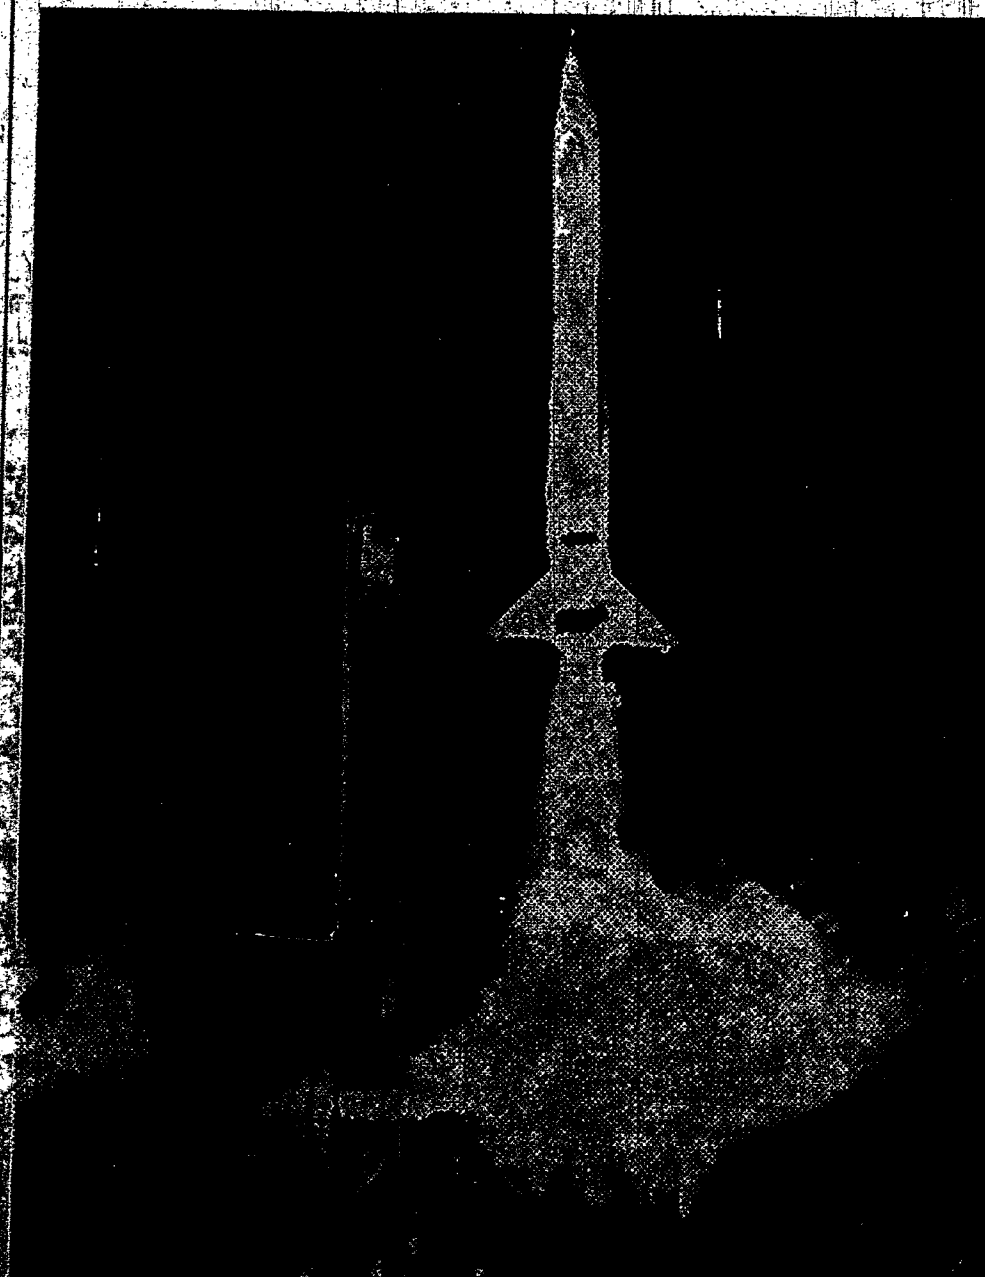

Associated Press Science Reporter

With roaring rockets, man begins his conquest of space in 1957.

Scientists will continue test-firing the rockets designed to hang a little artificial moon out in space. Whizzing around the earth every 90 minutes, it will be the first man-made messenger exploring the puzzles and hazards of our next great frontier—space travel.

The first little "moon," about the size of a basketball, might even be launched within 12 months. You will be able to see it sometimes as a faint, fast-moving dot of light low in the sky at dusk or morning.

The satellite program will be just part of a wave of new scientific studies to learn more about our earth and universe during the International Geophysical Year beginning in July.

International Cooperation

Scientists from 40 nations will cooperate in research to learn more about our weather and its control; about cosmic rays from space; about gravity, magnetism, the exact shape of our globe, the retreat or advance of glaciers, mysteries of the oceans, and about the sun which gives us life. In this line of duty, a handful of scientists will live for a year smack on the South Pole.

Many exciting expectations from science and medicine in 1957 will stem from achievements of 1956. Others will blossom unexpectedly.

As examples:

HEART DISEASE. Look for new surgical techniques to learn about the "rust" that clogs heart arteries and causes heart attacks. The first such surgery was done in October on two men, both victims of heart attacks. Research will also be directed toward the danger of preventing the dangerous rust or preventing it from collecting.

CANCER. Scientists will report new progress toward fighting the deadly disease by attacking it at its source.

ASTRONOMY. New discoveries will be reported on the structure of the universe and the nature of the stars.

PSYCHIATRY. A new "peace pill" appeared, and more drugs are promised to control moods or combat mental illnesses. The new pills could be discoveries concerning the biochemical nature of mental health and illness, and the treatment of mental disorders.

Old Formulas Set the Tempo

To sum up entertainment in 1956 and outline the trends most likely to develop in 1957, The Associated Press called for reports from its specialists. Here are reports on the movie industry, television and Broadway theater, by The AP's James Bacon, Charles Mercer and William Glover:

HOLLYWOOD. The year 1956 may go down in Hollywood history as the year the movie industry sold out to television. No single incident of the year evoked so much widespread industry controversy as the sale of old movies by the major studios.

Exhibitors, to a man, felt that no one was going to see mediocre Hollywood pictures for the balance of the year. They stayed home, and the studios ratings as the year drew to a close.

Three problems faced the major networks as they apparently sought to consolidate the programming gains of previous years: (1) Rising production costs. (2) A variety of congressional investigations. (3) The competition of old movies, released in vast numbers to stations throughout the country.

BROADWAY. The year 1956 was a year of triumph for the theater. Broadway produced a record number of hits, and the industry as a whole was in a state of high spirits.

Lariat Patrol

About ten days ago we read an article appearing in all of the daily papers of Mississippi in bold head-lines "Highway Patrol Will Enforce Livestock Law." The article stated that "Mississippi's highway patrolmen were authorized to arm themselves with lariats against one of the state's oldest traffic hazards—wandering cows, mules and other livestock." Public Safety Commissioner Tom Scarborough in a letter to patrolmen stated, "I'm depending upon you to make a strong effort to rid our highways of this road hazard. It is extra work, a hindrance to attending to regular traffic duties. I trust you gentlemen will not feel that this special duty is beneath the dignity expected of officers."

We certainly believe that the cattle hazard on the highways in our area is a very grave one, numerous cars having been wrecked and many lives lost because of this existing hazard. Within the last few days and nights we have seen plenty of livestock roaming U. S. Highway 90 through our county and on Highway 49 north of Lyman and Saucier. Especially during the heavy fog have these animals added extra hazards.

Did you see the highway fatality figures on Mississippi highways during the month of December? Doesn't appear that all our radar "hide-in-the-bush operation" has been so effective lately.

Frankly, we believe that since our patrolmen now have some new Texas hats and uniforms a lariat would be appropriate equipment. Boy, we just can't wait to see some of the boys roping those half-breed brahma steers and tying them to the rear of a patrol car and steering them into the cattle pound. "Operation Attack" sounded to us like good propaganda, and now we have "Operation Livestock." It is good publicity, but we are waiting for results. No radar is needed; no "crack-downs"; no hide-in-the-bush tactics are necessary, cattle are roaming the highways daily and nightly, and only when we see the lariats in action we will believe that this is not just another publicity play.

Thank You, "Doc"

After twenty-two years of faithful service Dr. James A. Evans, a local dentist and citizen of many years, has tendered his resignation as General Chairman of the St. Joseph Academy Annual Carnival Ball.

Dr. Evans has been general chairman of the ball since it was first started in 1934, and he has been most diligent, cooperative, and tireless in all of his efforts to make this annual event one of dignity, beauty and success in every sense of the word.

It is with regret, we are sure, that his resignation was accepted, and to you, "Doc," our community thanks you for twenty-two years of wonderful service for a worthwhile organization.

Wildcats - 2 For A Nickel

Now that the holidays are over and we're getting back into our usual routine of living, perhaps you will find a moment or two for a quick survey of the past ten days.

There will be, first and foremost, warm recollections of families reunited at Christmas, the wonder of Christmas morning for the children in your homes, and varied impressions of New Year's Eve, depending on how you said "Goodbye" and "Hello" to '56 and '57. This is as it should be, for these are the memories dearest to your heart and freshest in your mind; but there are other memories of the Yuletide that, while less pleasant, are no less real.

For instance, the seven or eight hundred people killed on our highways, the scores drowned, burned to death, killed or maimed in falls and other sorts of mishaps, and the most needless, frustrating and really tragic accidents of all—the deaths and injuries to children from fireworks.

We realize that the government can't bring all traffic to a halt, legislate the people off the beaches or forbid a citizen to climb a step-ladder to fix something. These activities are all part of normal, everyday living, and the risks involved must be considered to be normal risks. But to deliberately invent, manufacture and make available to children fireworks capable of putting out eyes and blowing off fingers is idiotic and inexcusable. Particularly so when the alleged purpose of these fireworks is to give added pleasure and enjoyment to our youngsters, and add to the general holiday spirit. We all know how often just the opposite effect is achieved. If you haven't known at first hand, you've all read at one time or another of some family whose Christmas, and often whose entire life, has been cruelly blighted by a fireworks accident.

Those who favor the unrestricted sale of fireworks (in their own interest, needless to say), argue that "accidents will happen" that their products are safe if properly handled and are intended for the entertainment of our children at Christmas time. We say it's the same thing as bringing home a savage wildcat for your children to play with, for their "entertainment."

American Capitalism

Three Soviet citizens, officially invited to this country to observe the American presidential campaign and elections, were so impressed in seeing a land so fabulously rich that they scarcely believed in the reality of it.

With Russia's hungry satellites in armed revolt against a totalitarian tyranny and the Soviet itself apparently cracking at its seams, even a casual inventory of Communism's economic shortcomings would make a sorry showing compared to what American Capitalism has done for its people.

No economic system on earth can produce a record of equal achievement in its service to mankind. Under our Capitalistic System we have gained the greatest liberty; the most enduring security against violence, despotism and expropriation; and an abundance of life's blessings never before enjoyed by the common man.

To the common man, under Capitalism, have come the countless benefits of mass production and mass consumption which only a century ago were shared in less measure by royalty and the fortunate few who were rich.

What are the fruits of a Godless, classless Communism that enslaves men and impoverishes their spirits as well as their purses?

We should be inspired to testify freely in behalf of this American concept as we press on to the unfinished work of perfecting it in the service of mankind. Isn't it high time that all our schools and colleges, by-products of our prosperity, give pupil and student the true story of the Capitalistic concept, that has done so much to lift our living standards, improve our lot, promote our health and increase our happiness?

Thankful we should all be that our generation has lived to see and enjoy the harvest of a system that continues to startle the world with its handiwork.

Communism may be a fantastic scheme, promoted to beguile the gullible, but it could never produce for its proletariat one fraction of what American Capitalism has already delivered for the common man — by guaranteeing him through perpetuity his God-given individual independence and the countless opportunities that flow with human dignity, self-reliance, initiative and industry.

TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS IN THE HEART OF TOWN

Miss Marlene Egloff Becomes Bride Of Henry Logan of Pass Christian

A prominent wedding of the Christmas season was that on Saturday of Miss Marlene Marie Egloff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alfred Egloff, to Mr. Henry Byrne Logan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Logan, Sr., of Pass Christian. Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church was the setting for the nuptial Mass performed at nine o'clock in the morning by the Rev. T. Rev. Michael McCarthy, pastor of the church.

The altar of the church was decorated with tall golden vases filled with white gladioli and white pom pom chrysanthemum blossoms interspersed with greenery. Potted palms formed a lovely background for the double ring rites.

Preceding the ceremony, Professor A. Hammersbach, church organist, presented a program of nuptial music, including selections from Mendelssohn and Schubert. Conrad Mauffray sang Schubert's "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," "Oh, Perfect Love," and "Oh, Lord, I Am Not Worthy" during the ceremony. The traditional wedding marches were played for the processional and recessional.

The petite brunette bride was escorted to the altar by her father and wore a formal bridal gown of white delustered satin and Chantilly lace. The bodice of the gown was of lace and featured long sleeves, ending in calla points. The Sabrina neckline was softly scalloped and lavishly embroidered with tiny pearls. The billowing skirt of the gown, worn over hoops, was of satin with lace inserts in deep points along the bottom and fell into a Cathedral train. Her finger veil of silk illusion was attached to a French bonnet of lace and satin, scalloped in the front and trim med with net fluting and pearls. She carried a satin muff, topped with a bouquet of imported Australian orchids and lilies of the valley and wore, as her only jewelry, small pearl earrings.

Miss Janelle Egloff was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the Misses Mildred and Ann Logan, sisters of the bridegroom, Pass Christian; Miss Mary Stahle, Bay St. Louis; Miss Elaine Black, Greenville, Alabama; Miss Frances Winstead, Gulfport, a cousin of the bride; and Miss Marian Egloff, another sister of the bride. Their dresses were made identically of forest green iridescent taffeta pail length. The necklines were pointed in the front and back and trimmed with a double fold of the material. Moss green velvet sashes encircled their waists and tied in large bows in back, with the streamers reaching the hemlines of the gowns. They carried matching velvet muffs topped with cymbidium orchids and wore bands of taffeta and velvet leaves in their hair.

Little Misses Byrne Hardie, New Orleans and Patricia Polingie, Port Barre, La., were flower girls. Their dresses of formal length were of the same material and style as those of the bridesmaids. They carried old fashioned bouquets of bronze and gold pompon chrysanthemums.

A brother of the bridegroom, Charles Logan, was best man. The other attendants were William Logan, Jr., Lafayette, La.; Gene Tarzetti, Deltale; Gordon Mills, Armandville, La.; Robert Parker, Pass Christian; Leonard Benvenuti, Bay St. Louis; with Hartwell Gex, Jessie Alkrest, Keith Hardie, New Orleans, and Karl Polingie, Port Barre, La., serving as ushers. All the men in the wedding party wore formal morning attire.

The Hotel Reed was the setting for the large reception which followed the religious rites. The lobby, sunroom and dining room of the hotel were decorated in the Holiday motif, with a large lighted Christmas tree the center of attraction. Greenery and potted palms added to the Yuletide decor.

Mrs. Egloff, assisted in receiving by Mrs. Logan and members of the wedding party, selected a gown of cinnamon Chantilly lace worn over matching silk taffeta. The dress, made on sheath lines, featured a pleated fullness in the back. Her hat was of cinnamon satin trimmed in white and her corsage, a purple orchid, Mrs. Logan wore a gown of Dior blue peau de sole and a large hat of black velvet and also wore an orchid corsage.

The brides table, covered with a white maderia cutwork cloth, held the large three tiered wedding cake. Frosted in white, the cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom standing under a bower of white blossoms. White pompon blooms and fern encircled the cake, which was flanked with crystal epergne candelabra holding white tapers and pompon blooms. After the bride and groom cut the first piece, it was served by Mrs. C. B. Winstead, Gulfport, an aunt of the bride, Miss Geri Martin was in charge of the bride's register and others assisting in serving included Misses Brenda Assenheimer, Margaret Bayer, Karen Ker-Goslin, Ina Piazza, Pat Chapman and Catherine Beningo.

Florida was the honeymoon destination of the couple. The bride wore as her traveling outfit, a silk cotton suit of turquoise tweed, a turquoise velvet hat trimmed with rhinestones and black accessories. Her corsage was of orchids from her bouquet.

Mrs. Byrne attended St. Joseph's Academy and Pearl River Junior College. Mr. Byrne is a graduate of Jesuit High School, New Orleans, and will graduate at Mississippi Southern College in March. The couple plan to make their home in Bay St. Louis until that time.

 BY Mary Blake
 Home Service Director Carnation Company

Coffee Marlow
 (Makes 6 to 8 servings)
 1 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
 1 cup strong coffee
 1 1/2 medium (about 1/4 pound) marshmallows
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 Chill Carnation in refrigerator tray until soft crystals form around edges of tray (about 15-20 minutes). Heat marshmallows and coffee together over low heat or hot water until marshmallows are melted. (3-5 minutes). Add salt and chill until slightly thickened. Whip Carnation until very stiff (about 3 minutes). Fold whipped Carnation into marshmallow-coffee mixture. Spoon into refrigerator tray and freeze until firm (2-3 hours).
 *Instant or regular coffee may be used.
 Remember, too, millions of coffee lovers "cream" their coffee with Carnation.
